

Meant for Fun

It was just for fun –
a game of truth and dare.
No one meant to hurt.
No one meant to get so scared.

A game without a box,
a lid,
a single rule.
No one meant to dare real danger.
No one meant to be so cruel.

A game.
It was just for fun –
truth or dare,
we each could choose.
No one meant it.
Who could know –
that all of us would lose?

QUESTIONS:

1. What was meant for fun?

A game of truth and dare

2. What do you think happened? What is implied?

I think someone got hurt from this game

3. Why does the author constantly repeat “no one”?

I guess they were all friends

4. What does the speaker mean by “without a box, a lid, a single rule”?

That every thing was fair game.

5. How did all of them lose?

They could of lost a friend that was close to all of them

I like your answers.
They fit the poem nicely.
Good job!
